

METHOD OF PRODUCING A TOUCH PANEL

Abstract

First a display panel having a pixel region and a controlling circuit region is formed. Then a plurality of pixels arranged in array is formed in the pixel region. A plurality of orientation patterns that do not overlap the pixels is formed. Finally an input device is provided. The input device has a sensor for detecting the orientation patterns and generates at least a signal for inputting data.